

Our purpose is to improve the quality of life in cities by making them a better place for people to live, work and shop in

We focus on developing and managing sustainable, functional and aesthetic environments for people and companies to flourish

We create human-centered business environments and public spaces that improve the daily life of city people

Our main focus is on Tallinn and Riga, with currently over 100,000 m² GLA of office space in active development

We support the Unfinished City research project

- The research project analyses Tallinn's urban planning visions and future architectural development scenarios
- The three-year project is led by the Faculty of Architecture of the Estonian Academy of Arts, and includes outside specialists, who are collaborating with faculty members, researchers and PhD students
- The City of Tallinn is a partner
