

Project Manager

at Positium, in Tartu, Estonia

You are curious about big data. You're not afraid of challenges and enjoy solving puzzles. You wish to work in an active international team with witty colleagues. You've always wanted an office with a view. You dream about making the world a better place. Sounds familiar?

What's the job?

As Project Manager, you will be engaging in communication between Positium and our clients and partners, helping them utilise mobile positioning data to understand tourist flows and population mobility. Common tasks include scoping out the projects, coordinating tasks within them and keeping track of progress. It's an opportunity to learn from an industry front-runner and have an impact on the world of data.

A successful candidate

- has proven previous experience as a project manager
- is knowledgeable about project management tools, practices and procedures
- speaks English very well, preferably on Level C1
- is permitted to work in the EU
- must be able to work in our office in Tartu
- has no problems with travelling to different countries around the world
- has experience working with statistics, spatial data and/or IT project management (optional)
