It happens that one was in SS and there there was a neighborhood . And the teacher said that the parking spot belongs to one and when someone parks into someone spot gets it. Like i just parked at a front of a building and probably there there is one that would love to always park at the front of the building so today was the parking spot available for me so it may be. So specially someone from living in CT but no one from MA knows that one must clean his parking spot and the city or town cleans the common road which are in a way the opposite so the key is for one that when there were the big snows under twenties the ice rices so instead of cleaning or learning by observing was taking from the awareness of others as was parking in one spot . so therefore one needed to park at his parking spot which was not clean as he had a tiny car for a big body so the key belongs to_ a missing key.

“”22% churros i offered to him as a way to be welcoming which is not the same. ___
