Professional Military Education (PME) system

The PME system of the Baltic states divides officer education into four development levels. The first two levels concern the basic training and education of junior officers and are a national responsibility.

The Baltic Defence College's courses cover the third and fourth levels of military education in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania and offer continuing education for senior officers.

The Baltic Defence College delivers the following courses:

- » Senior Leaders' Course
- » Command Senior Enlisted Leaders' Course
- » Higher Command Studies Course
- » Joint Command and General Staff Course
- » Civil Servants' Course

The Baltic Defence College uses a combined educational approach, including lectures, seminars, small group (syndicate) activities, exercises and study trips, to facilitate adult learning.
