In my works you can recognize a different city motifs which constructed using visual collage method. All the fragments creates a new nonexistent view of a city. That's why I call it blend paintings, because of caleidoscopolical effect. In my view it's a variuos memory flashes of seen places in the past. architectural landscapes are a key to the past dressed in a historical code. The city is an artificial system created by a humans taking different shapes and forms in different times. The future is perceived through the prism of the past, and reflecting on old buildings helps us to rethink the past and to create a basis of the future. In some paintings you can clearly see the specific metaphorical sense where the static scenery interrelates with the scenes of intense movement and which constitutes the theme as a whole.
